CARDINAL HEALTH DEPLOYS MOBILEPOINT'S TABLET PC-BASED SELLING TOOL TO IMPROVE SALES PRODUCTIVITY

Irvine, CA – (July 20, 2009) –Cardinal Health has deployed MobilePoint's SalesTrak™ and OrderTrak™ selling tool to Cardinal Health's Ambulatory Care sales force and customer service workstations. SalesTrak and OrderTrak combine the latest tablet PC-based technology with MobilePoint's interactive selling software optimized to be used in front of customers. Cardinal Health's sales representatives can now access digital selling materials as well as ordering information on the sales call by simply tapping or writing on the screen of a tablet PC, resulting in improved sales productivity and a better customer experience.

With MobilePoint's pen-based technology, Cardinal Health representatives can quickly navigate through product information and pricing, configure solutions, generate quotes and close sales before they leave customers' offices -accomplishing in one visit what previously took one or more follow ups.

"The ability to complete the sales transaction on the sales call is critical to boosting the productivity and profitability of our sales force," said John Grisdale, Vice President of Marketing for Cardinal Health Ambulatory Care. "MobilePoint's software coupled with our supplier content running on the tablet PC platform gives us the capability to change the way our sales force interacts with customers and will be a significant benefit to our customers as well as our supplier partners."

"We are pleased that Cardinal Health has chosen MobilePoint's sales platform for its Ambulatory Care sales force," said MobilePoint's President and CEO Timothy E. Titus. "We understand the delivery of critical product information is essential to being competitive in an increasingly challenging sales environment. By combining the simplicity of pen and paper with the power of a tablet PC, MobilePoint helps Cardinal's sales representatives succeed where it counts most –on the sales call."
